Dennis Doherty, Geoff Hennessy Inducted Into UMB Athletics HOF

The University of Massachusetts at Boston inducted its Class of 2022 Athletics Hall of Fame members June 9.

In that group were Dennis Doherty UMB'82, and Geoff Hennessy UMB'79, assistant track coach for the 1987 National Div. 3 Champion Women's Track Team. The event was held in the Grand Ballroom of the Convocation Center at the Harbor Campus.

Kevin McCluskey, Hall of Fame chairperson and Jackie Shuman, the new athletic director, led the presentation.

Dennis Doherty is a 1977 graduate of North Quincy High where he played hockey and quarterbacked the football team for the Raiders. He is married to Janice (Kelly) Doherty NQ'77, who is the daughter of Frank Kelly, founder of the Quincy Track Club.

Hennessy, who is director of the Quincy Track Club and head coach of track and cross country for the combined Quincy/North Quincy teams, is also a North Quincy High School '74 grad and UMass Boston grad. He is married to Marguerite (Hines) Hennessy. As a member of the Beacons Coaching staff under Sherman Hart, UMass won four national titles from 1985 to 1988. The entire team was inducted at the ceremony. Also in attendance were Janice Doherty's sisters Maureen and Andrea.

Robert Cannon, a 2022 graduate of Quincy High School, was introduced as an entering freshman for the Beacons' cross country team. Cannon's brother, Jimmy, will captain the squad this fall.

Genesia Eddins, the present track and cross country coach for the Beacons, introduced Cannon to the approximately 200 attendees.

Dennis Doherty is a founding member of the original UMass Boston

men's hockey team. He earned first team New England Collegiate Conference honors and was a captain and MVP in 1981. Doherty led the team to the 1982 ECAC tournament title. His team finished with a 41-10-0 overall record and a 26-5-0 record in ECAC play over his tenure. An award in his name is given annually to the best hockey player on the UMB squad at their awards banquet.

Geoff Hennessy helped lead the Beacons to the ECAC D3 Indoor title and the NCAA3 Crown at University of Chicago with four National Champions and 10 All-Americans. He was primarily responsible for the hurdlers, throwers and distance runners.

$53M For Downtown Bond, Land Takings

Passes Council 7-1 Vote; Mahoney Dissents

By SCOTT JACKSON

City councillors recently passed a $53 million bond for improvements in Quincy Center, with nearly half of that money going towards acquiring four parcels of land and associated costs.

In a series of related votes, councillors approved taking by eminent domain three of those parcels, all three of which are located on Hancock Street.

Mayor Thomas Koch had introduced the $53 million bond request and the three eminent domain orders in May. The council's finance committee met on June 13 to review those four items and then councillors passed them all on June 21, the last regular council meeting of the spring.

The $53 million bond was approved in a 7-1 vote that evening. Councillor Anne Mahoney voted against the bond and Councillor Nina Liang was not in attendance.

Council Approves $15 Million Bond For Animal Shelter

By SCOTT JACKSON

City councillors have given their approval to a $15 million bond to pay for the construction of a new building on Quarry Street that will provide a new home for the Quincy Animal Shelter, the city's animal control officer, and the Police Department's K-9 unit.

Councillors approved the bond in a 7-1 vote on June 21. Councillor Anne Mahoney voted against the request and Councillor Nina Liang was not in attendance for the meeting.

Shortly before the vote, Council President Noel DiBona thanked supporters of the animal shelter - a dozen of whom were present that evening - for their efforts.

"I want to thank all the animal shelter folks who came out tonight - thank you for all the emails that have come through to me over the last few weeks. I appreciate all your support of it," DiBona said.

"This is a long overdue process and...hopefully we can move forward and get this thing built. I just want to thank you for all your time and energy you put into not only the animals but for the city of Quincy."

City councillors in 2017 approved a $3.55 million bond for the project, half of Ward 4 Councillor Brian Palmucci said he was in favor of the bond request but has some reservations about plans for a new municipal garage that would be located on the former Ross Lot.

"I'll vote in favor of this tonight, but I still have a lot of reservations relative to the cost of a parking garage that the city builds, owns, and operates, as well as the need for it based on current development timelines, but I know this isn't paying for the entire garage," Palmucci said.

"The garage is needed, we should get on with it before the prices go up any more, but I look forward to having a more robust discussion at some future as to the number of spaces and the actual need for the garage."

The $53 million bond does not include money for the garage itself. City officials have said they expect to receive federal or state money to pay for the construction of the new garage, which could contain between 1,000 and 1,500 parking spaces.

Rob Stevens, the city's deputy planning director, previously told councillors $17 million in the $53 million bond would be used for the acquisition of four parcels of land, $3.25 million would be used to relocate the tenants of those buildings and $4.5 million was set aside to demolish the buildings.

COUNCILLORS voted to take the buildings at 1459 Hancock St. (pictured on the left) and 1455 Hancock St. (pictured at right) by eminent domain on June 21. Councillors awarded $3.92 million to the owner of 1459 Hancock St. and $2.995 million to the owner of 1455 Hancock St. The buildings will be torn down to make way for a new civic space between a pair of proposed mixed-use buildings.

The bond also includes $2.9 million for environmental pre-characterization and soil management; $5.175 million for subsurface utility improvements; $12.75 million for surface utility improvements and civic space projects, including realignment of the intersection of Hannon Parkway and McConville Way (the state will contribute $2.3 million to that project); and $7.425 million for 36 months of fees for consultants and legal services.

City councillors voted to take by eminent domain three parcels – 1455, 1459 and 1620 Hancock St. – shortly after passing the bond.

The building at 1455 Hancock St. is currently home to a Tae Kwon Do studio while the building next door at 1459 Hancock St. is home to a coffee shop. The city plans to raze both of them to create civic space between two proposed mixed-use buildings on either side. Part of the money for surface improvements included in the bond will pay for that new civic space.

The taking orders for those two parcels were approved in a pair of 7-1 votes, with Mahoney opposed. In separate 7-1 votes, councillors awarded $2.995 million to the owner of 1455 Hancock St. and $3.92 million to the owner of 1459 Hancock St.

The building at 1620 Hancock St. was home to Taso's Pizza and Euro Cafe but has sat vacant since an April 2001 fire. Koch has said that property would be flipped to a developer.

Councillors approved taking the building at 1620 Hancock St. in an 8-0 vote. In a separate 8-0 vote, they awarded $2.2 million to the owner of the building.

The prices for those properties were recommended to councillors by City Solicitor Jim Timmins, based on appraisals conducted on behalf of the city. The property owners can sue the city to seek additional money, he noted.

The fourth parcel of land the city plans to purchase with money in the bond is located at 119 Parkway. That property is owned by LBC Boston, one of the re-developers of the Hancock Lot, and is home to IHOP. That building would be acquired to provide land for the new municipal parking

Professor Lisa Hussey Receives Excellence In Teaching Award

Simmons University announces Associate Professor Lisa Hussey is the recipient of the 2022 ALISE Excellence in Teaching Award.

Hussey, who spent her childhood in Seattle, WA, is now a resident of Quincy.

Presented by the Association for Library and Information Science Education, the award recognizes excellence in educating the next generation of library and information professionals.

In her application, Hussey's students and colleagues noted her student-centered approach to teaching, from her dedication to mentoring students, innovative problem-solving, depth of knowledge and enthusiasm for the field, and sustained relationships with former students.

"From the initial design of a course, Dr. Hussey keeps the needs and interests of the students in focus," said SLIS Director Laura Saunders. "From choosing readings that speak to both the foundational theories and the practical aspects of the field, to designing meaningful activities and assignments with real-world application, to finding ways to engage all students across different courses in all modalities."

That student-centered thinking is an important criteria of the award, along with contributions to curriculum design, mentorship, integration of theory and practice, and keeping up with technology in the LIS field. Students and colleagues also praised Hussey for integrating Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion topics into her courses by diversifying course readings and facilitating challenging discussions.

Prior to joining the Simmons School of Library Information Science (SLIS) faculty in 2008, Hussey was the director of library services at DeVry University in Arizona. She earned her Ph.D. at the University of Missouri, and her teaching focuses on management, information services, social informatics, and the foundations of LIS. She also teaches international and comparative LIS, and has led travel programs for SLIS students, teaching joint courses with Yonsei University in Seoul, South Korea. She also traveled with SLIS students to Rwanda, where they organized library materials at the Maranyundo Girls School.

Simmons University Research and Instruction Librarian and Adjunct Faculty Linda Schuller cited Hussey's support as key to her success as an adjunct.

"Dr. Hussey has always been available to me to discuss and question my ideas, suggest enhancements to my courses, and discuss issues of pedagogy," said Schuller. "She's introduced me to cutting-edge technology that I can use with my students, and her role as a mentor has been extremely valuable to my career as an adjunct."

Council OKs $10 Million For Buildings, Vehicles

By SCOTT JACKSON

At their meeting last week, city councillors approved borrowing a total of $10 million to pay for improvements to various municipal buildings, including firehouses and schools, and the purchase of new vehicles, including electric school buses.

Councillors on June 21 approved a $7 million bond for the public building improvements in a 7-0 vote. Councillor Anne Mahoney voted present and Councillor Nina Liang was not at the meeting.

Councillors passed a $3 million bond for the purchase of new vehicles in a separate 7-1 vote, with Mahoney opposed.

The $7 million bond will pay for 16 building projects, according to information Paul Hines, the city's commissioner of public buildings, provided to councillors at a previous finance committee hearing on June 15.

The bond includes $3.085 million for improvements to six of the city's firehouses. Shower rooms will be constructed at the Germantown, Houghs Neck, Quincy Point, Squantum and Wollaston firehouses. Roof replacements, masonry and concrete repairs are also planned for the Houghs Neck firehouse and window wall and roof replacements are planned at the North Quincy firehouse.

The city will use $1 million from the bond to completely replace the boiler room at North Quincy High School. Hines said that work would take place next summer, as the city must first design the new boiler room.

The city will also replace two boilers at the Clifford Marshall Elementary School for $350,000, three boilers at the Point Webster Middle School for $485,000, two boilers at the main branch of the Thomas Crane Public Library for $215,000, and one of the boilers at the police station on Sea Street for $150,000.

The bond also includes $620,000 to complete the renovation to the auditorium at Broad Meadows Middle School and $95,000 to install a new fan at the gymnasium at Quincy High School to ventilate the second story of the gym, where a running track is located.

The bond also includes $850,000 to complete the payments on the renovations of the North Quincy library branch and $150,000 for various elevator projects.

The city will purchase a variety of vehicles using the $3 million bond, including electric ones.

Electric vehicles to be purchased include two to four school buses at an estimated cost of $900,000. The city in February was awarded a $260,000 grant from the EPA to replace four buses with electric models. Koch's chief of staff, Chris Walker, on June 15 said the

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On July 15, 1606, the great Dutch master Rembrandt van Rijn is born in Leiden. Rembrandt completed more than 600 paintings, many of them portraits or self-portraits. By the age of 22, he was accomplished enough to take on his own students.

On July 14, 1789, Parisian revolutionaries and mutinous troops storm and dismantle the Bastille, a royal fortress built in 1370 that had come to symbolize the tyranny of the Bourbon monarchs. This dramatic action signaled the beginning of the French Revolution.

• On July 11, 1922, the Hollywood Bowl, one of the world's largest natural amphitheaters, opens. Its stage was a wooden platform with a canvas top, and audiences sat on moveable benches set on the hillsides of the surrounding canyon. In 1926, a group of Los Angeles architects built the Hollywood Bowl's first shell.

• On July 16, 1935, the world's first parking meter, known as Park-O-Meter No. 1, is installed in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. Indignant opponents of the meters considered paying for parking un-American, as it forced drivers to pay what amounted to a tax on their cars without due process of law.

• On July 12, 1957, Dwight D. Eisenhower becomes the first president to ride in the newest advance in aviation technology: the HMX-1 Nighthawk helicopter, administered jointly by the Army and the Marine Corps.

• On July 13, 1960, Senator John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts is nominated for the presidency by the Democratic Party Convention. Four months later, on Nov. 8, Kennedy won 49.7% of the popular vote, edging the 49.6% received by Richard M. Nixon, a Republican.

• On July 17, 1975, as part of a mission aimed at developing space rescue capability, the U.S. spacecraft Apollo 18 and the Soviet spacecraft Soyuz 19 rendezvous and dock in space. $53 Million For Downtown Bond, Land Takings garage that will be located in that area, Stevens said at the prior meeting. Chris Walker, the mayor's chief of staff, previously said that parcel is likely to be acquired without an eminent domain taking.

Mahoney, who voted against the $53 million bond, said councillors should have taken a separate vote on funding for the land purchases, like councillors did in 2017 when they voted on a park improvement bond that including money to acquire several parcels on Sea Street, to make sure the purchase costs were kept at $17 million.

In addition, Mahoney said FoxRock Properties, which is planning to build a medical office building on the former Ross Lot, should be the one to buy the IHOP building, not the city.

"When we did the Sea Street order a couple of years ago, we kind of identified the takings for x amount of money and then other monies were used for other elements. I'm just concerned because this is a lot of money," she said. "IHOP in particular, that's the one that concerns me... FoxRock should be negotiating directly with the landowner of that, not the city of Quincy."

The $53 million bond will be borrowed through the district-improvement financing (DIF) mechanism, which allows the city to pay back the bond using new tax revenue created in Quincy Center.

This was the fourth DIF bond authorized for work within Quincy Center. The first $40 million bond, approved in 2007, largely went toward the construction of the Hannon Parkway; an $80 million bond approved in 2017 was used for construction of the new 700-car garage on the Hancock Lot and related costs; and a $61 million bond approved in 2019 paid for environmental cleanup of the Ross Lot, the design of the new parking garage in that area, and costs associated with the Generals Bridge and Generals Park (the state picked up the $13 million tab for constructing the bridge.)

The city has also received $68.5 million from the state and federal governments to date for Quincy Center, Stevens said at the prior meeting. The state has authorized an additional $40 million in funding through the I-Cubed program, he added.

the money Mayor Thomas Koch was seeking at the time. Ward 4 Brian Palmucci made the motion to cut the bond in half, expressing concern over fully funding the project before the design was complete and about the size of the building, which he likened to the Taj Mahal.

After the $15 million bond passed on June 21, Palmucci said he was sorry the project has taken so long to get going.

"If I had known then what I know now, we would have got the Taj Mahal that was presented that night. I'm very sorry that there has been such a delay, but [I'm] glad to see that it's going through now," Palmucci said.

Mahoney did not comment on the request during the June 21 meeting but did express concern about the cost of the building during a previous committee hearing. At that hearing on June 15, she noted the town of Milton had asked the architect — the same firm that designed the new facility in Quincy — to go back to the drawing board to try to reduce costs on an animal shelter proposed in that town.

"You are doing that for the town of Milton. You're not being asked to do that for the city of Quincy," Mahoney said. "I think this council needs to ask you to go back and do that. You need to tighten your belt and come back with something we can afford to do."

The new Quincy Animal Shelter will be located at 99 Quarry St., adjacent to the city's dog park, and will replace the current animal shelter on Broad Street, where the city is building a new public safety headquarters.

At the June 15 hearing, Sandra Sines, the president of the Quincy Animal Shelter, said the city's residents and animals would both be well-served by the new facility.

"Since we began in 1999, the city of Quincy has changed in so many positive ways," she said. "The residents of the city of Quincy and the animals we serve deserve this new shelter. The Quarry Street shelter will allow us to continue our work and support the community for generations to come."

The new building on Quarry Street will contain about 14,900 square feet of space, down from the initial 21,000-square-foot facility that was presented in 2017. The building will have capacity for 84 animals when it opens: 30 cats and 8 dogs ready for adoption, 32 cats and 11 dogs not ready for adoption, and 3 of the Police Department's canines at a given time. Each animal-holding area will have its own exercise yard for those animals.

The building will include a reception area, interview rooms where residents looking to adopt a pet can meet with shelter staff, and support areas, such as space for food preparation and bowl cleaning, laundry and administrative offices. It will also have space for sheltering the pets of evacuees.

The building will feature a clinic on site with an exam room — to be used by both the shelter and animal control — a treatment area, a surgery prep room, and a single room for spaying, neutering and surgery. The 2017 proposal had a larger on-site clinic than what is now included in the plan.

The city plans to go to bid for the building over the summer and begin construction in late September. It should be substantially complete in November 2023 and ready for occupancy in January 2024.

The $15 million bond includes $13.95 million for construction costs, $100,000 each for fees to utility companies, materials testing and geo-tech, and furnishings, plus $750,000 for contingencies. The $3.55 million bond approved in 2017 was used to complete the design of the project and also paid for site work.

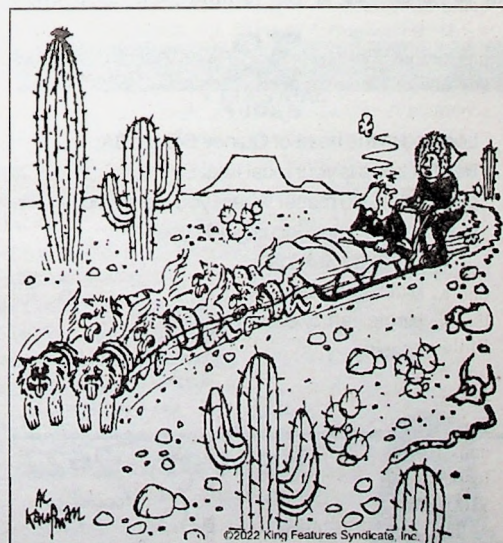

Before the Quincy Animal Shelter can move into the new building, it will relocate to a temporary home on East Squantum Street, which Paul Hines, the city's commissioner of public buildings, told councillors on June 15 is being renovated at a cost of $1 million. Those costs are being paid for with relocation funds included in one of the bonds for the public safety building, he said.

Workers in the Public Buildings Department will move into the facility on East Squantum Street once the shelter moves out, Hines said. They are currently based out of North Quincy High School.

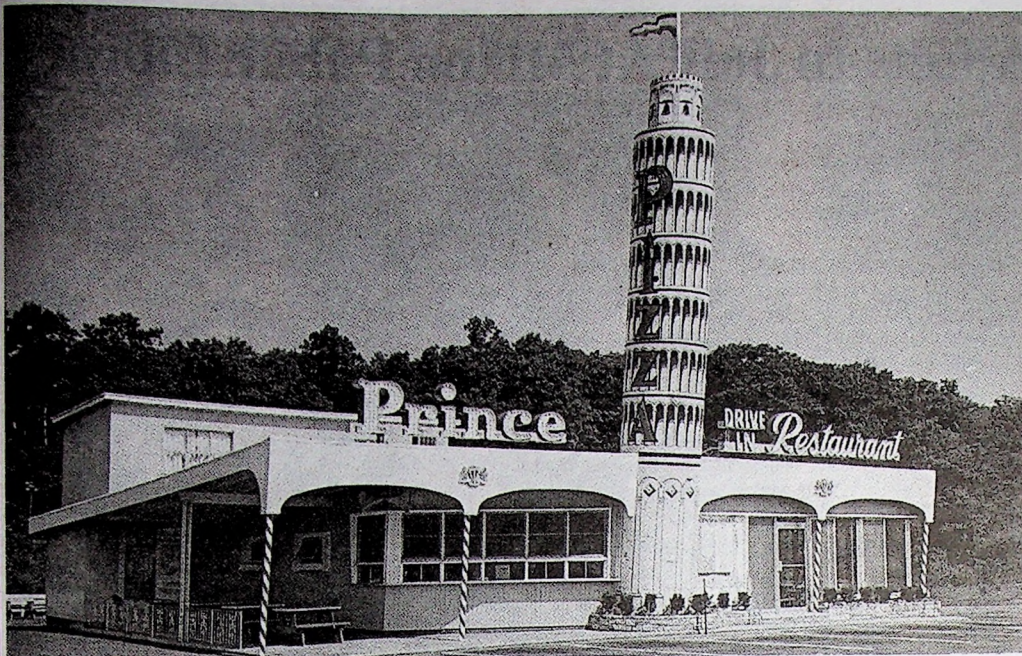

In a separate 7-1 vote on June 21, councillors approved using eminent domain to acquire a leasehold interest in the building on East Squantum Street and 2.7 acres of nearby land. Hines on June 15 said the agreed-to fee for the taking is $150,000.

Prevent Eye Injuries This July 4th

By Dr. CAROLANN SPERANZO

One of the most enjoyable activities for July 4th is watching fireworks. Many cities provide exciting and scenic fireworks for public viewing.

However, despite the fact that fireworks for individual use are illegal in Massachusetts, many access them and set them off in their backyards.

It is important to know that statistics from University of Alabama Medicine News show 1 in 5 injuries from fireworks involves eye injuries. Most common of these are burns to the eyes. Sadly, these often result in blindness. Few realize that sparklers (30% of injuries) can reach 1800 to 2700 degrees Fahrenheit. Noteworthy is the fact that in the past 25 years, 65 percent of those injured by fireworks were not the ones using them, they were observers.

Since the residue particles lose heat quickly, the injuries are often not noticed until later when the burned flecks of powdered metal become troublesome. Rubbing the eyes or rinsing could worsen the condition.

Also, self-treatment such as ointments of pain medications should be avoided, healthcare professionals need to assess the injury yet those who sustained injuries often waited 12 to 18 hours to seek emergency care. Most emergency staff believe the sooner the treatment the better the outcome for such injuries.

While no one can ensure children will not be injured, Johns Hopkins Medical School recommends glow sticks and glow-in-the-dark toys as preferable to the more common sparklers. The most vulnerable to July 4th fireworks injuries are children and teens ages 10 to 19 - they experience more than twice the number of injuries than adults.

As families prepare to enjoy Independence Day, view the beautiful firework displays many cities and towns provide and keep a distance of at least 500 feet for safety.

Flood Insurance Now Available

Quincy homeowners now have the official go-ahead to purchase low-rate flood insurance under a federally subsidized program.

Letters are going out from Mayor James R. McIntyre's office to an estimated 1,000 owners of trouble area properties instructing them on how to obtain the insurance.

Quincy is the first city in the state to be approved for the program under which owners of single to four-family dwellings may obtain the financial flood protection at a rate of $4 to $5 per $1,000 coverage.

"Until now it had been impossible to get flood protection because the high insurance rates were prohibitive," Mayor McIntyre said.

FINNISH PRESIDENT TO BE INVITED TO VISIT QUINCY

Mayor James R. McIntyre is inviting President Urko Kekkonen of Finland to visit Quincy this month. President Kekkonen will make an official visit to the United States and is expected to fly to Fitchburg from Washington, DC on July 15 to inspect the United Cooperative Summer Festival there.

"If President Kekkonen's visit to Fitchburg is firmed up, I will invite him to stop in Quincy," said McIntyre. "It wouldn't take him that far out of his way. We have a large Finnish population in Quincy of whom we are proud. They have helped make Quincy the great city that it is," McIntyre declared.

city is seeking additional grant funding to cover the purchase cost of the school buses and, if that grant is received, the city would use money in the bond to acquire additional vehicles.

The city is looking at potential locations where the electric school buses could be charged, Walker stated. He suggested charging stations could be built at any one of the city's public schools if needed.

Other electric vehicles that will be purchased include one to three Ford F-150s for the Department of Natural Resources at an estimated cost of $150,000; one to two transit vans for the Department of Public Buildings for $100,000; one or two passenger vans for the Council of Aging for $150,000; and two sedans for the Department of Inspectional Services for $100,000.

The city also plans to purchase new police cruisers and police equipment at an estimated cost of $500,000 using the bond.

Walker said the city would purchase eight to ten cruisers with that money, and they may be electric or hybrid models.

Other new vehicles to be purchased, which may or may not be electric, include a utility truck ($48,000) and street sweepers ($200,000) for the Department of Public Works and two Ford F-250s for the Traffic, Parking, Alarm and Lighting Department ($150,000).

Five other vehicles will be purchased for which there is no electric equivalent on the market today, Walker said. Those include a bucket truck for the TPAL Department ($250,000) and one for the Department of Natural Resources ($185,000), a Ford F-350 for the Natural Resources Department ($70,000) and two Ford F-550s for the DPW ($150,000).

Mahoney, who voted against the $3 million bond, said the city could have used American Rescue Plan Act (ARPA) funds from the federal government to pay for the new vehicles rather than borrowing money.

"This is an appropriate use of ARPA monies and I won't be approving this tonight because I just think we have a fiduciary obligation to the taxpayers of the city of Quincy and we're just spending money," she said, adding that the city should also take a closer look at which employees are allowed to drive their work vehicles home with them at the end of the day given increased gas prices.

Programs For Teens, Adults In July At Milton Public Library

By JEAN HLADY
Milton Public Library

During the month of July, the Milton Public Library is offering some fun events appropriate for both adults and teens.

Most of the programs are to be held virtually via Zoom, but one will be an in-person painting workshop and the MPL Walking Club will also meet on two Thursdays. We hope you might join other exercise-minded adults to take a fun one-hour walk scheduled for July 7 and July 21 starting at 12 noon, to meet up in the library's parking lot. This easy hike brings old friends together and you can also make new acquaintances while getting some fresh air at the same time. This ongoing program is held twice a month, but we do ask that you sign up to attend in advance at the MPL website.

There will be an in-person painting workshop called "Learn to Paint Flowers with Watercolor for Adults and Teens" held on Tuesday, July 5, from 6:30 to 8 p.m. in the Keys Community Room. Discover the beauty of watercolor paints by joining host Jean Hlady and an instructor from the Pop-up Art School who will show you how to mix colors like a pro.

You will learn tips and tricks for creating colorful flowers and leaves, and the class begins with confidence building drills so you can practice brush and water control before you make your finished floral painting. You will leave the class with your own finished masterpiece!

This program is appropriate for anyone from age 11 to adult, and you do not have to be experienced, but advance registration at our website is required to attend as space is limited. All materials are provided without charge for this fun workshop (sorry, not available virtually).

On Thursday, July 7, at 7 p.m. via Zoom, author Marty Gitlin will give a virtual music talk called "The Greatest Era in Rock: The British Invasion and American Answer." If you're looking for a fun and enlightening experience that will really entertain, here is an ideal one!

Pop culture historian Gitlin will bring this exciting time in music history to life by featuring great videos considered to be some of the finest rock performances, from the birth of the British Invasion through the response of some fantastic American bands. Groups like The Beatles, Beach Boys, Rolling Stones, The Kinks, The Byrds, The Who and more will be included. Test your music trivia too as the speaker will pose some tricky band and song questions to the audience.

Advance sign-up is required to receive the Zoom link to attend. Then on Tuesday, July 12, at 7 p.m. via Zoom, historian Bob Begin will tell us a wrenching story about World War II in a "Virtual History Talk: The Loss of the Indianapolis." She had delivered the Atomic Bomb to an island air base and was en route to the Philippines when she was torpedoed by a Japanese submarine. Over 900 men went into the water. They would spend four and one half days before being spotted by a recon plane. They would face numerous challenges and danger such as dehydration, exposure, hypothermia, dementia, and a complete breakdown of rank and discipline, and a most primal enemy...sharks! When the rescue efforts were over, only 317 men were alive.

This is a story of courage, loss of hope, and a cover-up. Please join us for a fascinating historical program with a very knowledgeable speaker. Sign up in advance is required to receive the Zoom link to attend.

On Tuesday, July 19, at 6:30 p.m., photographer Nick De Pasquale will be back via Zoom to give a "Virtual Photography Workshop: How to Take Great Travel Photos." If

BBB Tip: Travel insurance May Not Cover What You Think It Does

By BETTER
BUSINESS BUREAU
Does travel insurance cover canceled trips? The short answer, according to experts, is it depends on the policy and the situation.

In 2020 and 2021, BBB received thousands of complaints related to travel insurance, many of which occurred because the policy didn't cover the cancellation caused by the coronavirus and/or travel bans to certain areas. According to the U.S. Travel Insurance Association, the cancellation of a trip out of fear of traveling or in relation to travel advisories is not typically covered by these insurance policies.

However, travelers who purchased policies that include Cancel For Any Reason (CFAR) coverage may still have the option to recoup funds. Pandemics are often routinely listed as exclusions in policies, so read the fine print. In addition, travelers may also contact the airlines and other travel suppliers before filing a claim to see if there are refunds, waivers, or other accommodations offered through those companies.

When thinking about purchasing travel insurance, consider these tips:

- Travel insurance is intended to help with unexpected events, not things like forecasted hurricanes. Once an event is a "known event," meaning it's been forecasted or anticipated, it may not be considered a covered reason for cancellation if a traveler books a trip after that date.

- Policies vary. Before purchasing a policy or trying to file a claim, read the specifics on what the policy does and doesn't cover. Contact the insurance company directly with questions.

- Read the fine print. If CFAR was purchased, confirm the specific policy wording for all details regarding this benefit before filing a claim.

- Be flexible with travel plans. Dates, times and arrangements can change at any given time. Make plans, but leave room for the unexpected.

Movie Review: 'Lightyear'

By BOB GARVER

The streak is over.

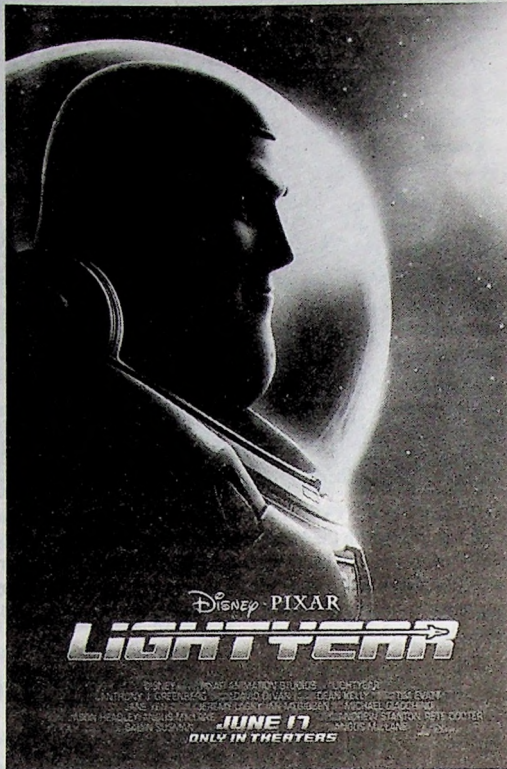

For over a quarter of a century, Pixar has been turning out some of the most thoughtful, imaginative, entertaining movies on the planet. The studio's annual output usually tops my year-end Best List, and I frequently hope that one of its movies will win an unprecedented-for-animation Best Picture Oscar.

And even though I may not love every single one of their movies ("The Good Dinosaur" just barely scraped by), all have them have at least been good enough to warrant a recommendation from me.

Until now. With "Lightyear," I have to say for the first time ever that Pixar has let me down.

A title card tells us that this was the favorite movie of Andy from "Toy Story" back in the 90's. It was why he wanted a Buzz Lightyear action figure so badly. I have a hard time believing that this was ever a child's favorite movie, and a harder time believing that any child who did see it would want a Buzz toy. All the outer space stuff in this movie? Fine, suspension of disbelief and all that. But that even one kid was sold on Buzz based on this movie? Unswallowable.

The film opens with Space Ranger Buzz (here voiced by Chris Evans, lacking half the passion of "Toy Story" voice Tim Allen) and his partner Alisha (Uzo Aduba) botching a mission to transport a team of scientists to an inhabitable planet. The entire crew is stranded on an unpleasant world. A year passes and people make do the best they can. Buzz takes the repaired ship on a test flight to see if a new fuel source can help it reach the hyper-speed necessary to get to the original destination. The mission is a bust. Worse, four years have passed on the planet due to time dilation.

A dejected Buzz is consoled by a now-engaged Alisha and a robotic therapy cat named Sox (Peter Sohn). Buzz tries again and again to achieve hyper-speed, but the missions keep failing. He only gets to see Alisha once every four years, and every time he does, she's onto a new chapter in her life. She gives birth to a son, and he in turn grows up to have a daughter of his own. Until one day, Alisha isn't there. This movie wants to recreate the magic of the opening montage from Pixar's "Up," but when it comes to bitter-sweet montages, that movie is untouchable, and Pixar should know better.

Buzz tries one more time with limited success, and returns to a planet under attack from the evil Emperor Zurg (James Brolin). His only hope to save the day now is to team up with a ragtag group of Junior Rangers, including Alisha's granddaughter Izzy (Keke Palmer), elderly Darby (Dale Soules), and clumsy Mo (Taika Waititi). The problem is that Buzz hates working with rookies and needs to learn a lesson over and over about how they're not worthless. It all leads up to a revelation about Zurg that allows him more development than just "Evil Space Emperor," but is such a common twist these days that another movie in the top five at the weekend box office has basically the same twist.

So much about "Lightyear" falls flat, from the action to the setting to the unfunny jokes and characters. Okay, I liked Sox, and Andy should have wanted a toy of him instead of Buzz, but the human characters aren't memorable. The best scene in the movie is a conversation about sandwiches, and not because the writing manages to make sandwiches exciting, more like this was the closest thing this movie has to a creative idea. Much like Buzz isn't used to the new kinds of sandwiches, I'm not used to Pixar movies that are this bad.

Grade: C-

"Lightyear" is rated PG for action/peril. Its running time is 100 minutes.

TRENCH COMPOSTING, a centuries old technique, is low maintenance, effective, eliminates the need to turn piles of plant debris, requires minimal space, and doesn't smell.

Composting Directly In The Garden

By MELINDA MYERS

Don't toss those imperfect lettuce leaves, onion tops and strawberry tops into the trash. Instead, convert them into compost right in the garden.

Worm and pile composting are great ways to manage these scraps. But if these methods aren't for you, try trench composting. This centuries old technique is low effort and effective. The process is basically invisible, eliminates the need to turn a pile of plant debris, requires minimal space and doesn't smell.

Simply dig a 12-inch-deep trench between the rows of vegetables, in the pathway, or in any vacant spot in the garden. Be careful not to damage the plant roots. Add about four to six inches of kitchen scraps, mix with soil and cover with at least eight inches of soil that you removed from the hole. Covering with this much soil helps prevent animals from digging. Repeat until the trench is filled with plant debris and covered in soil.

Just like other composting methods, use plant-based materials only. Do not add meat, dairy and fat that can attract animals and rodents. And this is no place for perennial weeds like quackgrass, annual weeds gone to seed, or invasive plants that can survive the composting and take over the garden.

You can also trench compost one hole at a time. Just dig a hole in a vacant space in the garden, toss in the materials, mix, and cover with soil. I grew up with this method. After dinner or once we had a bowl full of kitchen scraps, we were sent to the garden to dig a hole, dump, and cover.

For those that want to rotate plantings as well as compost, you may want to try one of these two methods. Plant in wide rows and trench compost in the pathway. Next year, move the garden to the path location and make last year's garden the path. You will be rotating your plantings while improving the soil.

Or designate separate adjacent areas for planting, paths, and composting. Next year, rotate so last year's composting area becomes garden, the garden becomes the path, and the path is the new section for trench composting. In three years, you will have rotated crops and improved the soil in all three areas.

Start by contacting your local municipality to make sure there are no restrictions on any type of composting. Then get out the shovel and dig your way to healthier soil and a more productive garden.

Melinda Myers has written more than 20 gardening books, including the recently released Midwest Gardener's Handbook, 2nd Edition and Small Space Gardening. She hosts The Great Courses "How to Grow Anything" DVD instant video series and the nationally syndicated Melinda's Garden Moment TV & radio program. WHAT'S COOKING with

Marie & Suzie

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO and SUZIE FALCO

Rotisserie Chicken Entrée

By MARIE

Today's recipe is probably one of the easiest ones that I have ever had in my column. It's for those busy nights when you would like to cook something hardy but are limited on time.

There are two ways that you can make this entrée; this one that I am giving you today, and another one that will be in print in the near future - it is a recipe that is almost the same but the process is just a little bit different.

Directions and Ingredients:

1 Rotisserie chicken - cut up and leave skin on

1 28-ounce can of crushed tomatoes

2 cloves of garlic, chopped

1 small onion, chopped (optional)

2 tablespoons olive oil

½ cup Romano or parmesan

1 teaspoon of basil (also optional)

1 pound of either spaghetti, egg noodles or linguine (your choice)

Cut up the entire Rotisserie chicken and set aside.

In a large skillet, heat the oil, sauté the garlic and onion, add tomatoes and the basil.

Let this cook for at least 20 minutes, stirring occasionally.

While the pasta is cooking according to directions, place the cut-up chicken into the tomato sauce, cover and heat.

When pasta is ready drain and add to skillet.

Add the cheese! Enjoy!!

Shake And Bake Potatoes

By SUZIE

Here is a recipe I saw online that I made the other night. Something I never heard of is to add baking powder and salt to the water when boiling potatoes that allow the potatoes to brown even and get crispy! SO EASY and so delicious.

Three or so potatoes (depending on how many hungry mouths you are feeding) peeled, and sliced into wedges or chunks.

Boil with one teaspoon EACH of salt and baking powder (NOT soda) until fork tender.

DRAIN and add back to pot.

IN the pot add 1/8 or more cups olive oil, 1 teaspoon sea salt, pepper, 2 cloves or so of chopped garlic (or a teaspoon garlic powder), ½ to 1 small onion chopped fine. I used Herbs de Provence (about a tablespoon) but you can add any dry herbs you like.

Toss well. Add to the pot, cover and SHAKE SHAKE SHAKE.

This really coats the potatoes and sort of makes a special coating that enhances texture of potatoes.

Bake on a PRE HEATED hot cookie sheet at 440 degrees for about 25 or 30 minutes until browned and crisp.

I served with "special sauce" (ketchup mixed with some mayo, a dash of mustard and onion powder).

Red Cross Blood Drives Here In July

As summer officially begins and people gather for holiday celebrations, the American Red Cross reminds communities that patients are counting now on the generosity of blood and platelet donors, especially around the Fourth of July.

The Red Cross sees about a 21 percent decline in blood and platelet donations during holiday weeks, including Independence Day. When blood donations drop, so does the blood supply, making it extremely challenging to ensure blood is available when hospitals need it.

By scheduling and keeping appointments in July, donors can help provide for those in immediate need of lifesaving care. To schedule an appointment to donate, download the Red Cross Blood Donor App, visit RedCrossBlood.org or call 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767).

As a thank-you for helping, all those who come to give June 30-July 10 will receive an exclusive Red Cross recycled cotton tote bag, while supplies last.

Upcoming blood donation opportunities in Quincy:

• Thursday, July 7, from 8 a.m. - 1:45 p.m., Blue Cross Blue Shield, One Enterprise Dr.

• Tuesday, July 12, 2 to 8 p.m., Saint Thomas Aquinas Hall, 2 Darrow St.

• Friday, July 15 from 1 to 6 p.m., Quincy Sons of Italy, 120 Quarry St.

Sheriff Recognizes Middle Schooler
As Norfolk County Hero

In a surprise ceremony at Foxborough Regional Charter Middle School last week, Norfolk County Sheriff Patrick McDermott presented middle school student Adam Taj with the Norfolk County Hero Award, in recognition of his wide-ranging service to his neighbors and his community.

"When we created the Norfolk County Hero Award, we did so hoping to be able to recognize the kinds of residents who don't hesitate to help out others in need," said Sheriff McDermott. "Adam is exactly that kind of person, always looking for opportunities to make life better for those who need assistance. It would be admirable to see this kind of spirit in any person, but in someone Adam's age, it's simply inspiring."

During this winter's storms, Taj garnered local attention for asking his mother to stop so he could help shovel out a woman whose car had been snowed in her driveway. Realizing that they lacked a shovel, he asked his mother to let him use his own money to purchase a shovel, which he used to help free his neighbor's car.

This generous act was also part of a much larger pattern of good works that Taj has become known for in his community. Whether by volunteering to help students with autism at his school or helping to clean up his neighborhood, Taj has developed a reputation as someone who simply wants to help anyone who needs it.

"I just want to say to everyone that you can help anyone, your neighbors, your friends, and strangers," said Taj. "Help in any way you can and remember if you do things in your life, whether good or bad, it will come back to you. So always do your best."

Sheriff McDermott presented Taj with the award during his morning "Ready, Set, Go" class, with his classmates, family, and school administrators present. Taj received a plaque and will also be honored at an upcoming ceremony hosted by the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office.

The Norfolk County Heroes Award was created to recognize acts of heroism, community building, and public service by residents of Norfolk County. To nominate someone for the Norfolk County Heroes Award, visit <https://www.norfolksheriff.com/norfolkcountyheroes>.

Social Security Matters

Ask Rusty – Will Claiming Early Affect My Wife's Survivor Benefit?

By RUSSELL GLOOR
National Social Security Advisor
at the AMAC Foundation, The Non-Profit Arm of the Association of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: My wife will be turning 62 and eligible to collect Social Security this year. We realize it will be a reduced amount. I am 52 and have been the sole income earner for most of the last 20 years. We also have an adopted son who will be turning 14 this year. We realize he will receive a dependent benefit until he turns 18 and this may make the case for filing early. I am confused about widow benefits - will my wife's early filing affect her widow's benefit amount? Signed: Confused Husband

Dear Confused Husband: When your wife claims her own SS retirement benefit (e.g., at 62) will have no effect on the benefit available to her as your widow. The only thing that would affect her survivor benefit as your widow is her age when she claims it. Claimed before her FRA, her survivor benefit would be reduced, but claimed at or after her FRA, your wife's survivor benefit as your widow will be 100% of the amount you were receiving (or, if you are not yet collecting, the amount you were entitled to receive) at your death. Your wife would get that amount, instead of her smaller personal amount.

However, for your awareness, your wife's spousal benefit while you are both living (which she can claim when you start your own SS benefit) will be less than half of your FRA benefit amount because she claimed her own SS retirement benefit at age 62. The reason is that your wife's benefit as your spouse when you claim will consist of her own reduced SS retirement benefit, plus a spousal boost to bring her payment up to her spousal entitlement. Since her spousal boost will be added to her own reduced early benefit, her total payment as your spouse will be less than 50% of your FRA benefit amount.

If your wife claims her own SS retirement benefit at age 62, she can also apply for your adopted minor son's benefits based on her personal lifetime work record. Although your wife's personal early benefit will be cut (by 30%) for claiming at age 62, your son's benefit as your wife's minor child will be based on your wife's full retirement age (FRA) benefit amount. Your son's benefit from your wife will be 50% of your wife's FRA amount (not her age 62 amount). As you know, your son will get that amount until he is 18 (or 19 if he is still in high school).

MA House Passes Comprehensive Behavior Health Legislation

The Massachusetts House of Representatives has passed comprehensive legislation addressing long-standing issues with the behavioral health care delivery system. The bill focuses on acute psychiatric care and crisis response, youth behavioral health initiatives, community-based behavioral health services, investments in the workforce, and enforcement of existing behavioral health parity laws.

"I'm proud of the legislation passed by the House today that builds on our long-standing efforts to advance important reforms and substantial investments that are aimed at improving our behavioral health care delivery system," said Speaker of the House Ronald J. Mariano (D-Quincy). "From addressing the behavioral health crisis that our young people are currently experiencing, to our efforts to alleviate emergency department boarding, to provisions that will bring us closer to treating mental and physical health equally, this legislation will benefit all residents in the Commonwealth when accessing critical health care. I would like to thank Chairman Adrian Madaro for his hard work, and for his commitment to producing a strong bill."

"When we talk about comprehensive, high quality health care, the availability of mental health services is a major part of that equation," said state Rep. Tackey Chan (D-Quincy). "This legislation will invest in our behavioral health workforce, expand insurance coverage, and increase access to services especially for our youth."

"I'm proud to have voted for this important legislation that brings much-needed changes to the availability of behavioral health in Massachusetts," said Rep. Bruce Ayers (D-Quincy). "It's vital that we ensure these resources are made available to all residents, and all aspects of this bill, including the creation of the 9-8-8 tool and the significant investment in behavioral health programs for young people and schools, is a big step towards accomplishing that goal."

Highlights of the bill include:

Initiatives to address emergency department boarding:

- Creating online portals that provide access to real-time data on youth and adults seeking mental health and substance use services, including a function that allows health care providers to easily search and find open beds

- Requiring the Health Policy Commission (HPC) to prepare and publish a report every three years on the status of pediatric behavioral health

- Codifying an expedited psychiatric inpatient admissions (EPIA) advisory council to reduce hospital emergency department boarding, including a protocol to expedite placement into appropriate care settings for patients under the age of 18

988 implementation and 911 expansion:

This legislation seeks to increase behavioral health care access across the Commonwealth through the implementation of the nationwide 988 hotline to access 24/7 suicide prevention and behavioral health crisis services. This legislation also expands 911 to bridge the gap until 988 is implemented by increasing training, funding, and capacity for regional emergency responses to behavioral health crises.

Red flag laws and Extreme Risk Protection Order:

This bill initiates a public awareness campaign on the Commonwealth's red flag laws and Extreme Risk Protection Orders (ERPOs), passed by the Legislature in 2018, that limit access to guns for people at risk of hurting themselves or others.

Full-system accountability for parity:

This bill tackles disparities in mental health and other forms of health care by giving the state additional tools to enforce existing parity laws, such as:

- Requiring licensed mental health professionals to be available during all operating hours of an emergency department (including via telehealth)

- Codifying hospital clinical competencies and operational standards and directing the Department of Mental Health (DMH) to establish a complaint process for alleged violations

- Directing DMH to create a comprehensive plan to address access to continuing care beds, intensive residential treatment programs, and community-based programs for patients awaiting discharge from acute psychiatric hospital units

- Implementing mental health watch reforms in correctional settings, including changes to the referral to mental health process for those who are incarcerated or detained, and establishing a process for a person on mental health watch for longer than 72 hours to petition to be transferred

School-based behavioral health services and programming:

- Limiting the use of suspension and expulsion in all licensed early education and care programs

- Requiring school districts to adopt a behavioral health crisis response plan which may be based on a cost-neutral model plan to be developed by the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education

- Creating a statewide program to help schools implement school-based behavioral health services

Access points for youth for effective behavioral health treatment:

- Creating a complex care resolution panel to ensure children with complex behavioral health needs are assisted quickly and with cross-agency support and coordination

- Requiring behavioral health assessments and referrals for children entering the foster care system

- Empowering the Office of the Child Advocate (OCA) to receive complaints from children and families and to assist them in resolving issues with access to behavioral health services

Expanded insurance coverage:

This legislation requires insurance coverage of critical behavioral health services, including:

- Emergency service programs

- Services provided under psychiatric collaborative care models

- Mental health acute treatment, community-based acute treatment, and intensive community-based acute treatment without prior authorization

- Annual mental health wellness exams

Workforce investments:

This proposal builds upon the Behavioral Health Trust Fund by carving out specific grant programs for health care providers, which would finance:

- Workforce Pipeline Investments: a scholarship program to support a culturally, ethnically, and linguistically diverse behavioral health workforce, with a focus on clinicians who commit to serving high-need populations.

- Integrated Care: a grant program to expand integrated care models that enable providers to expand their practices to provide behavioral health care in primary care settings

- Support for Providers: a grant program to promote the mental health and well-being of providers

Behavioral health parity implementation and enforcement:

This legislation tackles the disparity by health plans to reimburse mental health services at lower rates than other forms of health care by providing the Commonwealth additional tools to enforce existing parity laws and promote compliance.

This legislation enhances oversight of parity compliance by:

- Requiring carriers to comply with annual reporting requirements

- Directing the Division of Insurance (DOI) to review and ensure insurer compliance with parity laws

- Authorizing the Office of Patient Protection (OPP) to identify and refer potential parity violations that arise during OPP grievance reviews to the DOI and the AG's office

An Act addressing barriers to care for mental health" (H.4879) passed the House of Representatives 155-0 after a similar version of this legislation passed in the Massachusetts State Senate. The legislation moves back to the Senate for further consideration.

Baker Order Protects Access To Reproductive Health Care Services

In response to the U.S. Supreme Court ruling overturning Roe v. Wade June 24, Gov. Charlie Baker signed an executive order to protect access to reproductive health care services in the Commonwealth.

"I am deeply disappointed in today's decision by the Supreme Court which will have major consequences for women across the country who live in states with limited access to reproductive health care services," Baker said after signing the order. "The Commonwealth has long been a leader in protecting a woman's right to choose and access to reproductive health services, while other states have criminalized or otherwise restricted access."

"This executive order will further preserve that right and protect reproductive health care providers who serve out of state residents. In light of the Supreme Court's ruling overturning Roe v. Wade, it is especially important to ensure that Massachusetts providers can continue to provide reproductive health care services without concern that the laws of other states may be used to interfere with those services or sanction them for providing services that are lawful in the Commonwealth."

"We are proud of the Commonwealth's history of ensuring access to reproductive health care, and will continue to do so, despite today's ruling from the Supreme Court," said Lt. Governor Karyn Polito. "With these actions, Massachusetts is once again leading the way in protecting a woman's right to choose."

Several other states have imposed laws that would criminalize providing abortions and other reproductive health services, and this executive order would protect providers who perform these services for out of state individuals as well as individuals from out of state who seek services that are lawful in Massachusetts.

The order prohibits any Executive Department agencies from assisting another state's investigation into a person or entity for receiving or delivering reproductive health services that are legal in Massachusetts.

The order also protects Massachusetts providers who deliver reproductive health care services from losing their professional licenses or receiving other professional discipline based on potential out of state charges.

Under the executive order, the Commonwealth will not cooperate with extradition requests from other states pursuing criminal charges against individuals who received, assisted with, or performed reproductive health services that are legal in Massachusetts.

The Supreme Court's decision to overturn a woman's Constitutional right to abortion June 24 sparked calls of protest and support across the country.

Here are some of those reactions to the decision:

Cong. Stephen Lynch, who represents the 8th District in Massachusetts that includes Quincy, issued the following statement:

"In overruling Roe v. Wade and nearly five decades of carefully-deliberated precedent protecting the fundamental right to privacy of all Americans, this Supreme Court majority has unwisely resolved to place political ideology above its Constitutional role as the impartial arbiter of the law and a guardian of our Constitution."

"To the lasting detriment of the Court's own legitimacy, this unwarranted and clearly political decision will invite—and even compel—additional government interference into private healthcare decisions and certainly threatens other core civil liberties derived from the Due Process Clause of the 14th Amendment."

"As a proud cosponsor of the Women's Health Protection Act, I will continue to strongly support efforts to codify Roe v. Wade into law and ensure that the Constitutional right to privacy is not subject to political whim."

Statement released by DOVE, Inc. (Domestic Violence Ended) based in Quincy:

"The Supreme Court has overturned Roe v. Wade, and decimated the right to abortion in the United States."

"In doing this, the Supreme Court is allowing Mississippi to institute their harmful 15-week ban on abortion and is opening the door to further restrictions in other states. While abortion in Massachusetts will continue to be protected under the ROE Act, this decision is a devastating blow to the fundamental rights for all people in the U.S."

"Abortion services are essential health care, and it is vital that all people, everywhere, have the right to determine their own lives. For domestic violence survivors, abortion access is a matter of safety. Controlling a person's sexual and reproductive life is abuse; forcing a partner to stay pregnant is unfortunately an effective way to keep them dependent, and trapped in the relationship. When survivors are able to choose for themselves whether to continue pregnancies, they are safely more able to leave abusive partners and create new lives for themselves."

"Everything is connected. Justice Clarence Thomas released a separate opinion questioning access to contraceptives and LGBTQ+ rights in the U.S. This decision will not only effect reproductive rights, but fundamental rights of all Americans."

"We echo and endorse a statement made by Jane Doe, Inc., the MA Coalition Against Sexual Assault and

Domestic Violence:

"This dynamic is at the root of one of JDI's policy priorities – to add coercive control to our state's domestic violence protection order (209A)."

"It is also why JDI continues to advocate for the Healthy Youth Act. It's essential that our youth receive medically accurate, LGBTQ inclusive and age-appropriate sexual health education that offers lessons on a comprehensive range of topics, including healthy relationships, consent, sexual orientation and gender identity, and the prevention of pregnancy and sexually transmitted infections (STIs)."

"And it's why our expansive advocacy includes calling for sensible gun laws, criminal justice reforms, and other efforts to remedy these attacks on our cherished constitutional guarantees."

"DOVE will continue to provide crucial services to survivors and work to end domestic and partner violence. We refuse to stand by silently while reproductive rights are taken away."

"Now more than ever, we must support local providers, patients, and abortion funds, as well as advocate for federal protections such as the Women's Health Protection Act, the EACH Act, and the elimination of the Hyde Amendment from the federal budget."

"There will be many reflections, analyses, and calls to action in the days, weeks, and months ahead."

"Thank you in advance for keeping survivors front and center and for being in community with us. We can't do any of this without your support."

Massachusetts Republican Party Chairman Jim Lyons said he's proud of the courage justices of the United State Supreme Court showed in overturning Roe v. Wade, especially given recent credible threats of violence.

"It took 50 years but the Supreme Court finally got it right and determined there is no constitutional right in snuffing out the lives of the unborn," Lyons said. "At the same time, science has evolved and we now know that the unborn can begin feeling pain at just 12 weeks, having begun to develop a nervous system."

"The Democrats are constantly lecturing us to 'trust the science.' In this case, the science has proven that fetal pain and suffering is a real thing, yet in every instance, the Democrats have sought to expand the timeframe for abortions, thus expanding the cruelty and pain experienced by the unborn."

"Inflicting pain and death on another living, developing individual is not a right protected by the Constitution, no matter how warped the Democrats' logic may be."

Lyons noted that the SCOTUS decision does not ban abortions, but allows for each state Legislature to determine the legality of abortions for themselves. In Massachusetts, Democrats successfully codified abortion rights into state law in 2020, but as Lyons pointed out, stripped a state statute guaranteeing newborns the right to lifesaving medical care.

"Sadly, the Democrats here in Massachusetts not only codified abortion into state law but also placated their donors in the abortion industry by drastically expanding something they once claimed to be 'safe, legal, and rare.'" Lyons said. "That said, today's decision corrects the constitutional

O'Donnell Announces The Processing Of 1,500,000 Land Court Documents

Register William P. O'Donnell announces the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds recently processed its 1,500,000th registered land document.

"The processing of the 1,500,000th land registration document is a significant event in the life of the Registry and a testament to the volume of work completed each and every business day here at the Registry of Deeds," O'Donnell said.

O'Donnell explained that Massachusetts has two designations for recording property: recorded land and registered land/Land Court.

"The majority of land is designated recorded land while a small percentage, approximately 20 percent here in Norfolk County, is defined as registered land. Land is considered registered land once a petition has been reviewed and adjudicated by the Massachusetts Land Court Department in Boston," O'Donnell said.

Registered land is also referred to as "Torrens" land. Purchasers of registered land have certain protections with respect to title issues and claims of adverse possession. Under this category, the Massachusetts Land Court issues a decree upon the submission of a petition and plan of land, and all subsequent owners of the land are issued numbered certificates of title describing the property and listing all encumbrances and rights affecting the property. Documents filed in the registered land section are carefully reviewed by a specially trained registry staff and if accepted are then assigned a document number and noted on the owner's certificate of title.

"The Norfolk Land Court District is the second busiest in Massachusetts and our use of technology when it comes to improving the recording experience for our institutional users relative to electronic recording of Land Court documents is second to none," O'Donnell said. "We were the first Registry in Massachusetts to electronically record a registered land document on April 12, 2017."

The electronic recording of recorded land documents has been in place since 2010 at the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds. However, due to the more stringent requirements associated with recording registered land documents, electronic recording of these particular documents could only take place with the passage of Chapter 404 of the Acts of 2016, an Act to Modernize Registries of Deeds, which eliminated the need to retain original registered land documents.

"The Registry continues to embrace and utilize cutting edge technologies allowing us to record land documents instantaneously," O'Donnell said. "Documents are scanned and available for viewing within 24 business hours of recording at www.norfolk-deeds.org. Our computer systems are backed up on a nightly and weekly basis. This redundancy allows the Registry to maintain a permanent record of all land document recordings in the event of a disaster affecting our building at 649 High St., Dedham.

"Additionally," O'Donnell continued, "the Registry also microfilms all recorded land documents and ships the microfilm off-site to a secure location where it can be retrieved in the event of a catastrophe," stated the Register.

Residents and those with an interest in Norfolk County property are encouraged to visit the Registry of Deeds. Users of the Registry have options to view land documents by whichever

Form and Function Define Dining Room Styles

Ask Barbara Graceffa: 'Secretary Of The Interior'

Noting that function prevails over form in interior design, in my last column I offered advice on choosing the proper table size and shape to accommodate the number of dinner guests and to fit the size and shape of the room. Let me share some more functional tips – so get out your tape measure!

Have you ever been in a dining room that was so crowded that you had difficulty getting in and out of the chair? To avoid that, plan to have 42-48 inches between the edge of the dining table and the wall or another piece of furniture.

Speaking of chairs, avoid the oversized ones if space is limited and save money by not purchasing armchairs for the same reason.

This tip straddles the form and function issue: pedestal legs. Once you have owned a pedestal table, gone are the days of bumping into the legs of the table – believe me, you'll never buy a dining table with four legs again.

Now on to the pretty stuff! Fortunately, more than in any other room, furniture manufacturers take the guess work out of matching tables and chairs. However, be daring and create your own pairings. If modern is your style, today's beautiful raw edge wooden tabletop cantilevered over metal legs with simple Bentwood chairs makes a great choice. Or try a metal cage-style pedestal marble table with Louis chairs to fit an eclectic design. Want glam? Pair a metallic painted Parson's table with black lacquered chairs and white fabric cushions. Traditional dining sets include a classic wooden table or rustic farmhouse table with stained top and painted legs. Traditional chairs abound: Windsor, vintage French, Parsons, cross back, and more. (Sources: Elements of Style; Home Décor Cheat Sheets: Need to Know Stuff for Stylish Living)

Finally, marry the furniture style when choosing lighting, rugs, and table settings to produce that Pinterest-perfect room you and your guests will love.

Reaction To Supreme Court's Decision To Overturn Roe V. Wade

error that was the original Roe v. Wade decision and provides American voters with a real choice moving forward."

The America First Policy Institute (AFPI) issued the following statement from President and CEO Brooke Rollins:

"Today's historic Supreme Court decision does not mark the end of the near half-century fight for life; it correctly returns this issue to the people's elected representatives in each of the states. The hopes of future generations now rest within the purview of lawmakers, who will decide whether America will continue spiraling down the Left's extreme path of taxpayer-funded, on-demand abortion up until the moment of birth or a path of compassion, support, and care for both the lives involved in this difficult issue — the mother and the baby — and fulfilling the Founders' vision of a country that cherishes everyone's inalienable right to LIFE, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

"It should also be noted that this historic day for democracy, nearly 50 years in the making, would not have been possible without the leadership and commitment to life of President Donald J. Trump. Thank you, Mr. President!"

The District I region of American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, representing obstetrician-gynecologists across New England released a statement condemning the U.S. Supreme Court's decision in the case of Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization reversing Roe v. Wade, which represents a direct attack on the patient-physician relationship and the practice of medicine.

"The decision in Dobbs upends the public health infrastructure in our country, and the values we as health care professionals hold dear. By putting physicians in fear of retribution for providing evidence-based, appropriate, lifesaving care, and denying patients the ability to turn to their trusted physicians for care, this decision fundamentally, irreparably, and devastatingly compromises the patient-physician relationship."

"Patients will lose the ability to make decisions about their health, their families, and their futures. Physicians and practices in our country, depending on their location, will either be overwhelmed by an influx of patients forced to delay care to travel hundreds of miles away from their communities or will be forced to contradict their years of training and ethical obligations by withholding evidence-based care."

"The consequences of this decision will be sweeping, not only by opening the floodgates to widespread bans on abortion but also for what it represents — a frightening era for health care professionals who must fear criminal, professional, and civil penalties for providing evidence-based, appropriate care. The Court's decision will have devastating ripple effects, and this legislative interference will not stop with abortion — its chilling effect will impede miscarriage and ectopic pregnancy management, care for patients with pregnancy complications, and threaten infertility treatments. It will also fuel efforts to target other essential care, including contraception and gender-affirming care."

"Pregnancy can be a high-risk time in a person's life, particularly for those with medically complex conditions, and our nation's maternal mortality rates are already unacceptably high — this decision will take us backwards. The harm of the U.S. Supreme Court's decision will be experienced most acutely on the communities that are already systemically marginalized, exacerbating unacceptable inequities in our health care system. District I of ACOG is committed to mitigating the fallout of this decision; to accommodating patients seeking care from outside our borders to the best of our ability and capacity; and to advocating for our patients, our colleagues, and our profession in the face of further unfounded and dangerous legislative/judicial interference."

Reproductive Equity Now Executive Director Rebecca Hart Holder released the following statement after the Supreme Court issued its decision in Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization and overturned federal constitutional abortion protections enshrined in Roe v. Wade.

"Abortion is still legal in Massachusetts. And if you are seeking abortion care, you are loved and supported."

"But with the Supreme Court's decision to overturn federal abortion protections, the Court has given the green light to anti-abortion state legislatures across the country to strip people of their bodily autonomy and leave upwards of 64 million people of reproductive age without lifesaving health care. Black, Brown, Indigenous, immigrant, LGBTQ+, low-income, rural, young, and disabled people will bear the greatest burdens of these extremist abortion bans, and for those who can't afford to travel for care, abortion will become essentially obsolete. Right now, there are lots of unknowns about what this ruling will mean for clinics and care. But we do know that this decision — which is a culmination of a 50-year campaign by the far-right to assert white supremacy and restrict bodily autonomy — will result in a grave health care, economic, racial justice, and human rights crisis in the United States."

"We are angry, we are afraid, but we have been preparing for this day."

"In moments of crisis, Massachusetts has always risen to the challenge, and we will do so again. Our Commonwealth can pave the path forward for abortion access and must do all we can to provide care to anyone who wants it. But we have work to do. That's why we put forward a 21-point plan to remove barriers to reproductive health care access in the state, to protect our providers offering abortion care and our patients seeking it, and to increase education and research efforts around reproductive equity and access. Even before this decision, Roe was the floor, not the ceiling. We must do all we can to not only guarantee the right to abortion, but also guarantee access to care for every person — regardless of income, zip code, race, immigration status, or age."

"Let us be clear: overturning Roe was not the anti-abortion movement's end goal. They are coming for a federal abortion ban. They are coming for birth control, gender-affirming care, and LGBTQ+ marriage. We cannot sit idly by. We need every single person off the sidelines and in this movement with us. So please sign up to volunteer with Reproductive Equity Now, donate to your local abortion fund, and elect pro-reproductive equity candidates up and down the ballot. The battle for abortion rights will be fought and won in the states so invest your time, resources, and energy into state and local organizations in the toughest fights. We need you now more than ever."

Geoff Diehl and Leah Allen, the Republican party's endorsed candidates for Governor and Lieutenant Governor of Massachusetts, issued the following joint statement regarding the U.S. Supreme Court's decision in the case of Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization:

"We both believe in protecting innocent life wherever possible, and we support the Court's decision for its proper interpretation of our Constitution, which takes the question of abortion and places it in the province of the states, where it belongs."

There have to be camps for differently-abled kids like her, and she's going to sleuth one out. A place where she can trek through a forest, fly on a zip line, and even ride on a horse! A place where maybe she really can finally make a real friend, make her own decisions, and even do things on her own—the dream!

Quincy Celebrates Pride Month With Flag Raising, Annual Festival

Quincy Pride, Inc., dedicated to promoting diversity, equity and inclusion in Quincy and on the South Shore, celebrated Pride Month (every June) with their first flag raising.

In partnership with the United First Parish Church, the first flag raising ceremony was held June 1 outside of UFPC and featured guest speakers, performances from the Quincy Choral Society, and a poem by the Atlantic Middle School SAFE Club.

The Progress Pride Flag

was raised and blessed and remained outside of the UFPC, adjacent to the Hancock Adams Common, throughout the month of June. The groups look forward to making this ceremony a poignant, annual event and appreciate community members taking photos with the Progress Pride Flag.

Quincy Pride's Annual Festival, its fourth in-person since the inception in 2018, is held on the first Sunday of June at Pageant Field. On June 5th this year, the celebration brought thousands of members and allies of the LGBTQIA+ community and their families for an afternoon of music, love, and acceptance.

Upbeat, live performances by the Mid-Town Horns band, along a number of drag performers from Provincetown and Boston were held on the main stage. Children's activities including shows by Through Me to You Puppetry, face painting, kite flying, and lots more were offered for the little ones.

Over 40 local and LG-BTQIA+ vendors and non-profit organizations lined Pageant Field selling Pride-themed merchandise and/or promoting their LGBTQIA+ businesses or causes (MassEquality, Quincy Dems, Quincy for Transformative Change, Bisexual Resource Center, and many more). Aaah-Roma Pizza, The South Shore Taco Guy, and Smiled by the Mile were among the food vendors while Hive Mobile Bar served alcohol.

This year, Quincy Pride awarded its first scholarships through the Quincy Public School system to Quincy High School 2022 graduate Jamar Finn and North Quincy High School 2022 graduate Caitlin O'Regan. The pair started the SAFE Club six years ago and were recommended by QPS staple Holly Rendle to receive the scholarships. Quincy Pride also awarded sponsor Manet Community Health Center the Community Partner of the Year Award, citing not only their work to help Quincy through the pandemic and administering vaccinations, but also their dedication to the LGBTQIA+ community.

"This year was certainly the most successful event," one attendee said. Quincy Pride Festival saw an upgrade with giveaways, a large stage, new merchandise, and great raffle items (including a weekend getaway to Provincetown) donated from dozens of businesses.

Quincy Pride would like to thank all of its sponsors for making this their biggest and best day yet. Premiere Partners were the City of Quincy, the Boston Foundation, Harbor Health, QUIRK Cars, the Stone Family Charitable Foundation and Arbella Insurance Foundation. Additional sponsors include Health Alliance, Bogan Tree, Envision Bank, the Quincy Chamber of Commerce, FoxRock, Tito's, South Shore Bank, Stop & Shop, Baker Braverman & Barbadoro P.C., DCU Bank, and the Committee to Elect Bruce Ayers.

ATLANTIC MIDDLE SCHOOL student Kimara Collins, designer of the B4Z Logo, and Mike Santoro.

Atlantic Book Drive Benefits School In Zambia

Donations Needed To Help Cover Shipping Cost

Packing a box of books is not as simple as it may seem... especially when you are planning to load and ship over 30,000 of them!

"It's sort of like doing a jigsaw puzzle" explains Atlantic Middle School seventh grade volunteer Barry Zheng. "All the books need to be sorted by size and then loaded into the boxes lying flat."

"We carefully fill each box all the way to the top to make sure it can support the weight of other layers of boxes on top of it. Books are heavy!" adds classmate Gesniah Mesidor.

The students and their classmates are participating in a project run by their teacher, Holly Rendle, who previously served as a Peace Corps Volunteer in Zambia. "Living in an under-resourced community changes you," she says. "After teaching in Zambia, I've done my best to share the experience vicariously with my students." While teaching at North Quincy High School in 2000, she even went so far as to lead a cultural exchange trip for students to Zambia, Malawi, Botswana.

Since then, Rendle and her family have organized the collection and shipment of three shipping containers full of donated books, sports equipment, and educational technology as a thank you to the Zambian colleagues and communities who welcomed her so graciously.

With the help of friends and the community, it has been a team effort.

One of the most important and consistent partners in the project has been the Quincy Rotary Club, who have assisted with everything from logistics and collection of donated items, to fundraising. They have been integral to each of the previous campaigns, and have generously elected to do so again this time around.

Former Atlantic parent Cassandra Walsh has also stepped up to play a pivotal role in the latest campaign. After seeing the post on social media, she reached out and immediately became an invaluable member of the team—collecting and transporting donations, getting the word out, and facilitating the generous participation of Quincy Youth Soccer leadership, who are donating gently used uniforms and soccer equipment. "It dawned on me how fortunate most of us are, and I felt compelled to step up," said Walsh. "Once I heard [Holly's] personal connection to Zambia and how all these kids want are books to build a school library, it really touched my heart."

Meanwhile, back at Atlantic, students are taking an interdisciplinary approach to the project. Of course there is the service aspect and the social-emotional lesson of gratitude and giving back.

Students have also been empowered to practice new skills such as art, design, editing, and public speaking in support of the project.

In ELA class, students have written letters "introducing" their favorite books, and will include the letters with those books as a way of connecting with and inspiring a Zambian peer. Students have also used their math and engineering skills to calculate the cubic volume of the container and estimate the number of books and the weight of the shipment.

Students Kimara Collins and Zahara Abdul-Sharifi came up with the idea of designing a custom logo, and then teacher and graphic artist Mike Santoro helped them bring the idea to fruition.

The shipping of the 40 foot container will cost around $10,000, which at first seemed insurmountable. But as 7th grader Julia Curry pointed out, "That's less than 33 cents per book, plus we get to send all the games and sports equipment, too!" The Atlantic students are busy fundraising, and there is a Go Fund Me (Books 4 Zambia), as well.

Organizers say they have reached its book and sports equipment goal and thank the City of Quincy for their generous donations. They are now focused on raising the $10,705 it costs to ship the container. To date, only $2,770 have been raised.

Community members who would like to participate may visit the website, www.books4zambia.org, to contribute and/or for more information. Or email: holly@books4zambia.org. The students of Atlantic, as well as those at Siankaba School in Zambia, thank the people of Quincy for their support!

UMass Minuteman Marching Band To Headline Christmas Parade

The University of Massachusetts at Amherst Minuteman Marching Band has committed to headline the 69th Annual City of Quincy Christmas parade, announces Mayor Thomas Koch.

Over 380 students are part of one of the most decorated college marching bands in the nation and will participate in the parade which will take place Sunday, Nov. 27th.

Under the leadership of Director Timothy Todd Anderson, the Minuteman Marching Band has emerged as one of the nation's outstanding band programs.

The band has performed for President Inaugural ceremonies, participated in the Macy's Day Parade and the Rose Bowl Parade in recent years. The highly acclaimed band has also been the recipient of the most prestigious honor bestowed upon college bands The Louis C.

Sudler Trophy.

The band is noted for its award-winning drumline, large and powerful horn section and enthusiastic color guard that will certainly bring great entertainment to the parade spectators. Spectators from Quincy and beyond come by the thousand to watch the two-mile-long parade route down Hancock Street from Quincy Square to North Quincy High School.

"This is the largest and most decorated band to march in the long history of this parade," Koch said. "We are pleased to welcome them to our city and share their musical skills with all our citizens. I am sure that they will bring great pride our many citizens who are alumni of UMass and look forward to the large crowds that a band of this caliber will attract to our already great tradition."

In Between Days Music Festival Aug. 20 At Veterans' Memorial Stadium

Heritage Sports Ventures based in Quincy announces the lineup and details of its inaugural In Between Days summer music festival set for Saturday, Aug. 20 at Veterans' Memorial Stadium in Quincy.

In Between Days is purposely slotted towards the end of August -- before the end of vacations and the beginning of school. The former lineup is headlined by Manchester Orchestra, leading an electric and eclectic slate that features Hippo Campus, Tennis, The Blue Stones, Kevin Devine, Blac Rabbit, Catbite, and Boston's own Sidney Gish.

"It is the best day of summer in every sense: Great music; spending time with kind people; immersed in a really fun experience where we can catch up and meet friends old and new," says Heritage Sports Ventures CEO Alex Magleby. "It's one of the last days of summer vacation, one last time to laugh, dance, and be free. It's coming home and reconnecting with my best friends, and catching up for a massive encore before school starts. It is the rebellion of summer, colliding with the nostalgia for a return to normalcy. Being back with best friends, reminiscing and celebrating together before the sun sets."

Gates open at 11 a.m. on Aug. 20, and live music and entertainment fills the air throughout the day and evening until 9 p.m. Tickets are on sale now via Eventbrite and inbetweendaysfestival.com, with early bird pricing active until July 9.

The music festival features an afternoon of music, entertainment, local food and craft beer. The vendors taking part in this inaugural In Between Days will be unveiled in the coming weeks.

AAA: Gasoline Prices Down 7 Cents

Massachusetts's average gas price is down seven cents from last week ($5.00), averaging $4.93 per gallon. Monday's price is 20 cents higher than a month ago ($4.73), and $1.95 higher than June 27, 2021 ($2.98). Massachusetts's average gas price is four cents higher than the national average.

A drop in the global price of oil helped the national average for a gallon of gas to fall for a second week to land at $4.89. Economic fears of a potential global recession leading to less demand for oil dropped the price to around $107 per barrel, down from $110 last week.

"Fear is not a good reason to move a market like the one for oil, but it is a powerful motivator," said Mary Maguire, AAA Northeast director of Public and Government Affairs. "The cost of oil accounts for nearly $3 for every $4.89 at the gas pump. Consumers should find more relief when fueling up if oil prices drop further."

AAA Northeast's June 27 survey of fuel prices found the current national average to be 9 cents lower than last week ($4.98), averaging $4.89 a gallon. Monday's national average price is 30 cents higher than a month ago ($4.59), and $1.80 higher than this day last year ($3.09).

TOMMY MALONEY was among the local youngsters who participated in the Quincy Community Police and DPW Bike Obstacle Course June 26th. Tommy was escorted by some of the nicest police officers on the DPW obstacle course and he was fitted for a new bike helmet from Boston Children's Hospital. Animal Rights Activists Should Fund Raise For New Shelter

Please wake me from the nightmare of what I think is an article on the construction of a animal shelter at the cost of $15 million dollars. Does this mean that I, in a sense, would be responsible to a degree if my neighbor's 12-year-old Cocker Spaniel suffers from worms, while a four-year-old boy who recently broke his arm at Collins Kiddie Playground needed to be taken to a medical facility outside the City of Quincy?

Before I'm attacked as being an anti-pet nut, I would challenge anyone to show me any open space that has not been changed into a dog park. The leash laws in this city are about as effective as trying to get your kids to brush their teeth after every meal. It is now easier to negotiate a mine field than take a walk through a park designed for a leisurely walk. I would also like to know if non-permanent residents or even non-residents will have access to this facility.

My solution is to have all the concerned animal rights activists to join together as one organization and to raise the necessary funding and have the site donated to them by the City of Quincy.

By the way, I did have a Collie named Ginger and a cat named Benny.

A Thank You From HN Garden Club

The Houghs Neck Garden Club would like to thank all who helped make our Annual Plant Auction a huge success.

As we end our year the Presidency changes hands. Patti Williams has done a terrific job of running things for six of our toughest years. We appreciate her dedication.

As I, Joanne Bythrow, take over the reigns, I hope

I can do as well. Our members are an incredible bunch, very supportive and dedicated to making Houghs Neck a beautiful place to live and grow.

As always, we welcome new members with open arms. If you don't know anything about gardening, this is the Club for you. None of us knew much when we joined but we learned and are still learning every day. Gardeners love to share their knowledge.

If you see us out there weeding on Saturday mornings just jump in and join us. You can always call me for more info. Jmbythrow@gmail.com or 617-347-3901.

The Houghs Neck Garden Club is a member of the Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts and a 501C3 non-profit organization.

3 Cheers To Quincy Senior Olympics

The Senior Olympics was once again a huge success. I know I speak for all participants that the Dept. of Recreation, The Kennedy Center, the Mayor's Office, and their respective staffs made all us senior kids feel like we were back at camp, without the poison ivy. We had a ball.

Thank you to every sponsor, every host and every agency that make this week a total fun fest. I haven't lived in Quincy for years but each year, this event brings me home. The wide range of events keeps us all moving, aiming, tossing, and laughing but the best part is renewing friendships and meeting new and interesting people each year.

May our paths cross again soon. Keep moving, and be good to you.

THE MIRACLE PRAYER

Dear Heart of Jesus, in the past, I have asked for many favors. This time, I ask you this very special favor (mention favor). Take it dear Heart of Jesus, and place it within your own broken heart where your father sees it. Then in his merciful eyes it will become your favor, not mine. Amen.

Say this prayer for 3 days, promise publication and favor will be granted, no matter how impossible. Never known to fail. S.C. 7/7

OBITUARIES

Joan C. Pasquinelli, 93

Joan C. Pasquinelli of Quincy passed away peacefully surrounded by her loving family on Sunday, June 19, 2022. She was 93.

Born in Boston to Johanna (Clifford) and Thomas Johnston, both from County Kerry Ireland and raised in South Boston. She attended St. Augustine's Parish and married at Gate of Heaven. In 1966 she moved to Quincy, where she would consider home for the rest of her life. She later went on to work as a receptionist at Mass Eye and Ear for 33 years.

Joan was a devout Catholic and spent many years attending Mass at St. Ann's Church in Quincy. Her faith ran deep and impacted many aspects of her life. In her down time, she would often be found reading or praying. Joan was always sure to make time to lend a helping hand. She volunteered many hours at the St. Francis House with her daughter Joanne and in retirement she volunteered at Brigham and Women's Faulkner Hospital.

Beloved wife of the late Anthony Pasquinelli. Devoted mother of Joanne (Pasquinelli) Hallahan and her husband Joe of Quincy. Cherished grandmother of Shannon Worley and her husband Bruce, Sean Halla-

JOAN C. PASQUINELLI

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You clever Ewes and Rams love nothing more than to rise to a challenge. So, by all means, if you feel sure about your facts, step right up and defend your side of the issue.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You've done some great work recently. Now it's time to reward yourself with something wonderful, perhaps a day at a spa or a night out with someone very special.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You love to talk, but don't forget to make time to do a little more listening, otherwise you could miss out on an important message someone might be trying to send you.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your aspect indicates some uncertainty about one of your goals. Use this period of shifting attitudes to reassess what you really want and what you're ready to do to get it.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Your social life is picking up, and you'll soon be mingling with old friends and making new ones. But 'twixt the fun times, stay on top of changing workplace conditions.

VIRGO (August 23 September 22) A trusted friend offers understanding as you vent some long-pent-up feelings. Now, move on from there and start making the changes you've put off all this time.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) You might well feel uneasy as you face a difficult situation involving someone close to you. But you know you're doing the right thing, so stick with your decision.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You're a good friend to others. Now is the time to allow them to be good friends to you. Rely on their trusted advice to help you get through an uncertain period.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Family and friends are always important, but especially so at this time. Despite your hectic workplace schedule, make a real effort to include them in your life.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) That project you've been working on is almost ready for presentation. But you still need some information from a colleague before you can consider it done.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Don't let those negative attitudes that have sprung up around you drain your energies. Shrug them off, and move ahead with the confidence that you can get the job done.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Aspects favor some dedicated fun time for the hardworking Piscean. A nice, refreshing plunge into the social swim can recharge your physical and emotional batteries.

BORN THIS WEEK: You love to travel and be with people. You probably would be happy as a social director on a cruise ship.

HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD — “Joker” opened in October 2019, grossed $1.7 billion, received 11 Oscar nominations, won two, including best actor for Joaquin Phoenix, and then silence. Usually when a film is a runaway hit like, say, “Top Gun: Maverick,” sequel talk starts immediately, but there was no sequel talk for “Joker”...until now!

Director Todd Phillips has written (with Scott Silver) and will direct the sequel, “Joker: Folie à Deux” (a French medical term for a rare mental disorder in which two people share the same delusion). Even though we haven’t heard much from Phoenix, he’s been busy completing “Disappointment Blvd.,” with Parker Posey, Nathan Lane and Patti LuPone, and then immersed himself in creating his “Napoleon,” as directed by Ridley Scott for Apple TV+. Among actors who’ve portrayed Napoleon are Marlon Brando (“Desiree,” 1954), Rod Steiger (“Waterloo,” 1970), Ian Holm (“The Emperor’s New Clothes,” 2001) and Christian Clavier (“Napoleon,” 2002). Joaquin has some mighty big shoes to fill.

Speaking of “Top Gun: Maverick,” there is a big legal dogfight brewing between Paramount Pictures and the Israeli-based widow and son of Ehud Yonay, the man who wrote the original article in California Magazine in 1983 that “Top Gun” was based on. Paramount says the copyright expired after 35 years and it didn’t need to be renewed. It plans to “vigorously fight” because the Yonays believe their copyright was still in effect and want big bucks.

Hats off to Matthew McConaughey for standing up in front of the whole world “As a father, gun owner and a Texan from Uvalde.” McConaughey, who now lives in Austin, called for all Americans to “step up for change in gun responsibility, including enacting background checks, red flag laws and upping the age requirement to 21.” He further added, “I don’t support gun control, I support gun responsibility.” He took time from making films while he considered running for governor of Texas, but after careful consideration, he reconsidered.

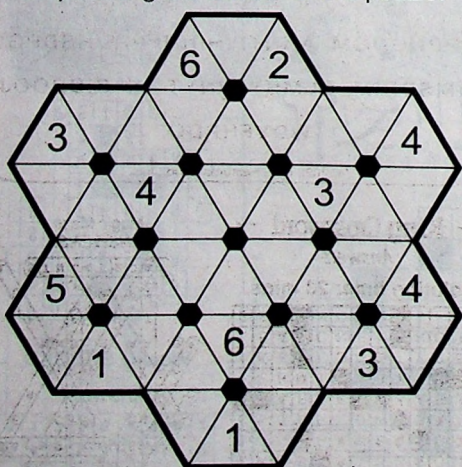

If you’re old enough to remember “The Munsters” TV series, which ran from 1964-66, it probably just brought a smile to your face. If you don’t remember the original series, there were five films from 1966-1996. Rob Zombie, who wrote and directed “House of 1000 Corpses” (2003) and two highly profitable “Halloween” sequels in 2007 and 2009 (both starring Malcolm McDowell of “A Clockwork Orange” fame), has written and is directing “The Munsters,” with Jeff Daniel Phillips as Herman, Sheri Moon Zombie (his wife) as Lili, and Daniel Roebuck as Grandpa. Both Pat Priest and Butch Patrick (the original Munster children) have cameos in the movie. Zombie is producing the film for Peacock and promises it will be faithful to the original series. Even Frankenstein never had it this good!

KOVELS Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Barber Chair — Little boys are often terrified when they are taken for a first haircut. All those high chairs, strange men and flashing scissors. So, for generations, some barbers have had special figurinal chairs for children. The most popular is probably a horse.

There are barber chair collectors who have enough room to display them or antique lovers who buy one adult chair and keep it in a home bar or library or even living room to use. But those who dream of having a barber’s chair must remember it weighs several hundred pounds and will be hard to move to another location, especially up or down stairs. The special large metal chairs with the hydraulic parts also may need repair. Today, the most remembered names of barber equipment are Kokens or Belmonts, but one of the oldest is Emil J. Paidar Company from Chicago. It was the leading barber chair company from the early 1900s to the late 1950s. The company chairs were copied by other makers. In the late 1950s, Belmont merged with Takara Chair Sales Company of Japan. Takara started by 1921 and opened in New York in 1959. The new company joined Koken in 1969. The man’s barbershop chair has changed little over the past 100 years except for the upholstery material and more streamlined metal parts, but the child’s chair today can look like a car, airplane, horse, motorcycle, spaceship and more. Cowan auctions recently sold this Emil Paidar Company chair. The front of the chair is a realistic stuffed leather horse that the child sat on for a haircut. It was estimated at $1,500 to $2,500 and sold for $1,375.

Q: We’re looking for information and price for an old stove. Several names are stamped on it: “Garland Stoves and Ranges, Inland Garland Stove, Michigan Stove Co., Detroit-Chicago, Garland Aerated Oven, Patented Dec 1889.” We think a part for the back is missing.

A: The Michigan Stove Company was founded in 1873. It made stoves, furnaces and heaters, and was the world’s largest stove manufacturer by the 1890s. Over 200 models of Garland cooking and heating stoves were made. Garland Group was formed in 1995. It became part of Welbilt Company in 2008. Old stoves in good working condition sell for a few hundred dollars. Those in poor condition or with missing parts are hard to sell.

Q: I saw that there is another movie or series coming out on Marilyn Monroe. The actress does resemble her with the wig, but who is she and what does she look like without it? — N.L.

A: There have been many films, both on television and in theaters, about movie star Marilyn Monroe, but the newest one, "Blonde," is a product of Netflix and will star Ana de Armas. It's based on the novel of the same name by Joyce Carol Oates, which, according to "The New Yorker," is not a biography of Monroe, but instead "rearranges and invents the details of Monroe's life in order to achieve a deeper poetic and spiritual truth."

The film is an acting showcase for de Armas, who is probably best known for dating Ben Affleck during the pandemic, but she's also earned accolades from critics, including a Golden Globe nomination for her role in "Knives Out" opposite Daniel Craig. She again starred with Craig in his final Bond film, "No Time to Die."

Ana de Armas is a Cuban-born brunette with big brown eyes. In the preview for "Blonde," she does an excellent job resembling Marilyn with the help of a platinum wig, but also masters the flirtatious giggle of the starlet as she looks into a mirror. The film also stars Adrien Brody ("The Pianist"), Julianne Nicholson ("Mare of Easttown") and Bobby Cannavale ("Nurse Jackie"). It will premiere Sept. 23 on Netflix.

Q: Whatever happened to actor Matthew Fox? I was a big fan of "Party of Five" and "Lost," but I haven't seen him in anything for quite a while. — O.S.

A: After the hit series "Lost" ended in 2010, Matthew Fox starred in the post-World War II film "Emperor," with Tommy Lee Jones, and a handful of other projects, but essentially retired from acting in 2015. This followed his DUI arrest and, prior to that, an assault claim by a female bus driver in which charges were later dropped. Fox took a break to spend time with his wife and kids until a project came along that sparked his interest, which turns out to be the upcoming series on Peacock called "Last Light." According to TVLine.com, it's about "a world plunged into crisis when oil suppliers are jeopardized" and co-stars Joanne Froggatt ("Downton Abbey"). A premiere date has not been announced.

Q: Will there be another season of "The Gilded Age" with Christine Baranski? I love period pieces and hope for more! — Z.D.

A: Yes, HBO officially confirmed in February that there will be a season two of "The Gilded Age," the tale about a penniless 19th-century young woman (Louisa Jacobson) who moves from rural Pennsylvania to New York City to live with her aunts in high society. While there is no premiere date yet, filming has begun in New York and Rhode Island.

Did Hiccups Lead to Guinea Pig's Death?

DEAR PAW'S CORNER: Our beloved guinea pig died suddenly this morning. I'm not sure what happened, and because there is no veterinarian near us who can treat guinea pigs, I'm searching for an answer. He developed an ear problem recently that was causing him to tilt his head, and to treat this, we were giving him Nurokind and 5 ml of water through a syringe. This morning, he started to hiccup, and an hour later he passed away. Is there any clue that you can provide as to why? — N. Dwarakanath

DEAR N.: My sincere condolences on the loss of your guinea pig. They're such wonderful pets. When guinea pigs get sick, it can be difficult to figure out the exact treatment. Head tilt is one of those illnesses that could be an ear infection but could also be something more serious like pneumonia or another infection. I'm a little curious about using Nurokind (Mecobalamin) to treat the illness, as it is a treatment for vitamin B-12 deficiency in humans. Perhaps a guinea pig owner out there can respond with the answer. Keeping your guinea pig hydrated was good, as this helps them when they're stressed out or sick. When an illness is prolonged in guinea pigs, the stress and pain make them weaker, and they begin to experience other problems. The hiccupping is usually a sign of indigestion in healthy guinea pigs, but even for them, it's very uncomfortable and stressful. That may have been the last straw for his system. I wish I could give you a definitive answer. Because there is no qualified vet near you, I encourage you to search online for guinea pig owner forums, as they are a very supportive and informative community.

Father of the Bride (PG-13) — A new "Father of the Bride" film is now out on streaming! The original version of this film first released in 1950, followed by the popular 1991 remake starring Steve Martin. In 2022, Andy Garcia assumes the father of the bride role, with Gloria Estefan as the mother of the bride. Their characters, Billy and Ingrid, are in the middle of a marriage separation when their daughter, Sofia, announces she's newly engaged, having proposed to her boyfriend, Adan. Even though Billy doesn't fully approve of the engagement, he offers to pay for their wedding and keep up a happy-go-lucky facade with Ingrid until the wedding is over. With all the love in the air, can Billy and Ingrid's story still stand a chance? (HBO Max)

Baymax! (TV-G) — You might remember the cuddly robot Baymax from Disney's 2014 film "Big Hero 6." Well, adventures with Baymax and the Big Hero 6 cast return for the whole family to enjoy in a new spinoff series. Baymax hasn't changed much from when we last saw him — still a bit clueless, but always ready to help those around the fictional city of San Fransokyo. Maya Rudolph reprises her voice role as Aunt Cass, while comedian-writer Jaboukie Young-White joins the cast. The first episode of "Baymax!" hits streaming on June 29. (Disney+)

Halftime (TV-MA) — On her journey to performing the halftime show of Super Bowl LIV alongside Shakira, superstar Jennifer Lopez simultaneously participates in heavy award-season promotion for her movie "Hustlers." While J.Lo reaches one milestone in her career by getting the halftime gig, she still feels she must prove her worthiness — as an actress, as a performer and as a female celebrity to be taken seriously. Whether you believe she is underappreciated or not, in this documentary, J.Lo excels in establishing the fact that she truly is one of the hardest working women in her industry. And that, at the very least, should command more respect. (Netflix)

My Fake Boyfriend (R) — A young man named Andrew is having a hard time trying to let go of his ex, Nico. Andrew often feels neglected and mistreated by Nico, to the point where his best friends, Jake and Kelly, decide to take matters into their own hands. Jake digitally creates Cristiano, a persona that appears online as Andrew's new man, causing Nico to finally understand what it feels like to be cast off for someone new. But when Andrew organically meets someone new (and real), time starts ticking to get rid of Cristiano and his digital footprint. It's not as easy as it sounds, though, when your faux boyfriend has 1.6 million followers. (Prime Video)

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

The United States scored the most lopsided victory in the 70-year history of the Bermuda Bowl, routing Brazil 506-288 in the final of the 2000 world team championship. The margin (in International Match Points) and the winning team's IMP total were both records for the event.

The 16-day competition, which started with 20 teams, came down to a showdown between the U.S. squad, composed of Bob Hamman, Paul Soloway, Jeff Meckstroth, Eric Rodwell, Nick Nickell and Richard Freeman, and Brazil's Gabriel Chagas, Marcelo Branco, Ricardo Janz, Miguel Villas-Boas, Joao-Paulo Campos and Roberto de Mello.

The final was a virtual runaway for the Americans from the very outset. Today's deal resulted in a 12-IMP pickup for the winners.

At the first table, Meckstroth, playing in four hearts, won the king-of-diamonds lead with the ace and led the spade four to dummy's king. East won and returned a club to West's ace, whereupon West cashed the queen of diamonds and continued with the deuce.

Meckstroth trumped the diamond with dummy's king and ruffed a spade, felling West's queen. Declarer then drew trump, crossed to the club queen and discarded his remaining diamond on the spade jack to make his game.

At the other table, Chagas, one of the world's great players, became declarer at the same contract. He had played nearly every deal for two weeks and showed signs of his fatigue by making the fatal mistake of drawing three rounds of trump after taking the diamond ace at trick one. He then guessed the spade position correctly, playing the jack after West followed low. But East took the ace and returned a club to his partner's ace, and West's Q-10 of diamonds set the contract one trick.

Riddle answer: _____

Plague Lung Cancer Screening

DEAR DR. ROACH: I'm a 74-year-old female who smoked a pack a day for 40-plus years, having quit smoking about 18 years ago. As a precaution, I asked my primary doctor to order a screening CT scan, knowing that I'm a candidate for lung cancer. The results showed a 3-mm nodule in one lung, and I was advised not to worry and that my doctor would order another CT scan in six months. I can't help but wonder if this is cancer and if an oncologist, after six months, will ask me why I waited so long to see him. -- T.W.

ANSWER: Medical professionals have been attempting to screen for lung cancer for decades. Chest X-rays proved insensitive: By the time cancer could be seen on X-ray, it was usually too late to do anything about it. CT scans are much more sensitive (maybe too sensitive; see below), and studies have shown that some lives will be saved with a screening program. However, the number of people who would benefit is relatively small; 256 moderate-to-heavy smokers would need yearly screening for three years in order to prevent one lung cancer death.

There are two other significant concerns about lung cancer screening. The first is the issue you have now: an abnormal result and what to do about it. It's extremely common. Almost 25% of scans will be abnormal, and 96% of the abnormal results will be false positives. But it will require multiple scans and sometimes an invasive procedure to prove it. This means a great deal of anxiety among people who get the type of result you did.

The small size of your nodule means your risk that this nodule is cancer is much lower than 1%.

A follow-up scan is the usual recommendation, and if the nodule is the same size or smaller, the chance of it being cancer is very close to zero. You should have had a careful explanation of the likelihood of false positive results before getting the scan. You should also have been warned of the possible need for a biopsy and the possible financial costs associated with follow-up testing.

The second concern is current smokers who consider screening. A negative CT scan is not a "clean bill of health" for a smoker, and quitting remains the single most important thing most smokers can do for their overall health.

DEAR DR. ROACH: Are deodorants containing aluminum safe to use? The brands that do not contain aluminum are much less effective. I am concerned about absorbing the aluminum from the deodorant and its effect on the brain. -- D.M.

ANSWER: That's a myth.

The amount of aluminum in antiperspirants is negligible. Deodorants that aren't also antiperspirants don't contain aluminum. The aluminum mechanically blocks the sweat glands in the armpit, and 99.99% of it is not absorbed into the body. Long-term studies of people taking aluminum-based antacid (which is also poorly absorbed) have shown no increased risk of dementia. The body has several ways of removing the small amounts of aluminum we absorb, mostly via the kidneys. Aluminum toxicity IS a potential problem for people with kidney disease on dialysis, but the small amounts of aluminum in antiperspirants is too small to worry about even in those cases.

There is absolutely no reason to be concerned about the health effects of aluminum on the brain.

Dr. Roach regrets that he is unable to answer individual questions, but will incorporate them in the column whenever possible. Readers may email questions to ToYourGoodHealth@med.cornell.edu.

The Milton Public Library will host a photography exhibit in the Wotiz Gallery from July 1 through July 28.

This collection of images is called "Pandemic Project" and it was created by Milton photographer Steve Nelson. The unique and colorful pictures show quiet moments of recognition and discovery during pandemic time. There will be about 30 pieces displayed, including "little glimpses and insights" which Nelson found to be "like thoughts, revelations or meditations." He works as a professional photographer, having started with industrial and product still life photography.

As the Boston economy evolved into professional services, Nelson's small company likewise evolved to address the market. Most of his work now has an emphasis on business portrait photography, most of which is done at his clients' offices. In the early spring of 2020, as the COVID virus swept through the world and a sudden exodus from office environments occurred, his business evaporated in the space of a few weeks. Most assumed this would be a brief disruption but faced with the disorientation we all shared, this artist realized he had an unexpected quantity of free time so embarked on a self-assigned "Photo of the Day" discipline. Nelson made a commitment to himself to see, capture, edit, and share one image a day.

This collection of work was an opportunity to stay connected with the craft that Nelson has loved for most of his adult life, and at the same time it kept him connected and facile with the tools of his trade. He did not want to find himself fumbling with his camera or editing software when business returned. Most of these photos were found within walking distance of his home in Milton, though a few are from his small sanctuary in mid-coast Maine. The photos are intentionally printed small to convey a

There will be two sessions. The first session, from Aug. 1-5, will be for children ages 7 to 11. The second session, from Aug.

8-12, will be for children 9 to 16. Daily sessions at North Quincy High will begin at 9 a.m. and conclude at 1 p.m. The fee is $200.

Beston has directed the camps for more than 30 years. A retired teacher and Quincy High School graduate, he excelled for the school's basketball team and is a member of the Presidents' Basketball Hall of Fame.

Barrett, the head coach of the North Quincy boys' varsity basketball team since 2006, is co-director of the camp. He teaches elementary physical education in Quincy. Several North Quincy players will help out with the camp.

Campers will be grouped according to age, physical maturity, previous experience and overall ability, and they will be supervised by coaches and counselors experienced in building a solid basketball foundation.

Quincy's Uncle Sam Rounseville and his wife, Jean Kenney, have donated 25 scholarships to help local residents attend the camp. The scholarships are limited to Quincy residents, but the camp is open to anyone living in the area.

To register or for more camp information, contact Barrett at 781-985-0476 or rkbarrett2002@yahoo.com, or Beston at 617-472-1962.

On June 10th, The Robert I. Nickerson Post 382 held its Annual Installation of Officers and Scholarship Night.

The night was kicked off by a beautiful rendition of the National Anthem by Norfolk County Sheriff Patrick McDermott.

With the echoing sound of the Pledge of Allegiance, and the American Legion Preamble, it meant another team of veterans were sworn in to serve as its officers for the 2022-2023 term. Returning as its Commander was John Diggins of Quincy.

Following the swearing in, the Robert I. Nickerson Post awarded – for the first time – 9 scholarships to deserving young graduates from the Class of 2022.

Officer Robert Verney of Quincy presented the Sergeant Francis J. Thorpe Scholarship to Kathryn Boylan and the Lance Corporal Christopher Donahue Scholarship to Gavin Toland.

Norfolk County Treasurer Michael Bellotti presented the Stephen T. O'Donnell Memorial Scholarship to Brendan Glynn.

Rachael McIver of Quincy presented the Mary Alice McIver Memorial Scholarship to Michael Gorman.

Ward Six Quincy City Councillor William "Bill" Harris presented the Edward J. Harris Sr. Memorial Scholarship to Daniel Bellotti, Fintan Murtagh, Daniel Freeman, Carson Douglas and Cameron Douglas.

It was an enjoyable evening had by all.
